In the synagogue—a reflection by Revd Mark Poole

The Gospel reading for this Sunday presents Luke's perspective of how Jesus' ministry is to be understood and therefore the lens through which the rest of the Gospel should be interpreted. Jesus reads from the scrolls in the synagogue at Nazareth. He chooses what we know as Isaiah 61:1-2:

"The Spirit of the Lord is upon me, because he has anointed me to bring good news to the poor. He has sent me to proclaim release to the captives and recovery of sight to the blind, to let the oppressed go free."

In biblical times synagogues were surprisingly small. Their design was simple; a rectangular stone-built hall with benches along the sidewalls and an empty space in the middle. There might have been a platform at one end where the leaders of the synagogue sat, and possibly, a special cupboard at the same end that housed the scrolls. Also, synagogues were multi-purpose places functioning like a village hall. They were used for studying the Law, hosting community meetings, judicial hearings and for worship and teaching on the Sabbath. But the key thing is, the physical space was small. So, when Jesus stood up to read and to teach in the synagogue, everyone would have been up close. It was eyeball to eyeball stuff. What was Jesus going to say? Folks must have been waiting with bated breath and with intense anticipation as Jesus sits (as was the custom) to deliver his sermon. But it was just one line (maybe there is a lesson there for me!) Jesus boldly proclaims that the scripture he had just read was fulfilled in their very hearing that day. Jesus, sitting right there before the gathered, declares he is the long-awaited Messiah fulfilling the words of Isaiah.

What happens next? Well, we know the rest of the story. His captive audience initially amazed at "the gracious words that came from his mouth" eventually rejected him. Shouts of 'Hosannah' turned to shouts of 'crucify him' as he was sent to his cross of wood to die. Jesus stood up in the synagogue and declared God's gracious love for all people, even the despised and marginalised. He proclaimed reconciliation, freedom, and salvation for everyone. This wasn't the Messiah people expected. I wonder, if I was in the synagogue, eyeball to eyeball with Jesus and witnessed His radical proclamation, how would I have reacted? How about you?

Forms are available in the Tower Room or by contacting Eve Scoreby (Electoral Roll Officer) 489008; 07746765274 or eve\_scoreby@hotmail.co.uk.

Parish Churches News & Events

Volunteer chalice bearers sought (St Nicholas Church): If you have attended church since Christmas you will be aware that the Priest now intincts (dips) each wafer in the wine before giving it. This requires someone to stand on the right of the priest to hold the chalice. So far Carole, Barry and Judith have been doing this, but we would like to start up a rota including some other people. No special skill is required - just the ability to stand and hold the chalice in a convenient position for the priest to dip the wafers in. Please inform Carole White if you feel you could offer to do this occasionally.

Derwent Deanery: invites everyone to join with them to mark Candlemas, after cancelling the service last year. All Covid precautions will be observed and we look forward to meeting together, cautiously.
